Oklahoma City, Okla – State Superintendent Ryan Walters visited Sulphur today to meet with Sulphur Public Schools Superintendent Matt Holder, first responders in the area, and to tour storm-damaged areas of the city.

“Superintendent Holder is doing an incredible job of rallying his school and community,” said Walters. “OSDE is doing everything possible to get resources and personnel to this area to help get our families safe and our kids back in school and supported so they can finish the year strong.”

Superintendent Walters posted a video of his experience in Sulphur, including footage of some damaged areas to his X (formerly Twitter) account here:
